and electrical markets, running alongside a varied seminar programme.

However, before you go penning in RI/IDW2 for next year, take note: IDW will be a stand-alone show for 2003, held at the BDC 5-7 March, and Retail Interiors will be running separately too. Then it's all change for 2004, when the two shows come together once more in the spring, a time of the year when Colclough expects to ensure maximum participation from VM exhibitors.

That's assuming these new show buddies hit it off this time around, of course, and the London location has the desired effect on visitor numbers.
